WRHS Welcomes Students Back to School  By Hunter Henry

On Wednesday, August 18, 2021, WRHS students returned for the 2021-2022 school year. Everyone went to the old gym where Mr. Kersey and Mrs. Findley talked about this school year, rules, and all the usual back to school things.

Melanie Jones, a junior at WRHS talked about the new hygiene closet available in the high school office. Melanie's pageant platform is: Everyone Deserves a Fresh Start; through which she has set up a personal hygiene closet for high school students.

We've had some staff changes this year, and most students are excited about them. Mr. Haynes is teaching math again, we have a new EAST teacher, Ms. Copeland, and Mrs. Linda Smith is teaching Pre-AP and AP History classes. Other than that, everything is just about the same as last year.

At first, we were all thinking that the school was going back to normal, but it's not quite there yet. For the first month, we weren't asked to wear masks, and it was up to each individual person. Recently though, the school board has mandated masks again, but hopefully all this Covid stuff will be over soon.

Speaking of Covid, students are now required to Zoom into all their classes if they are absent or quarantined. The only exception to this is if the student is too sick to do the work. Overall, the first day of school was an exciting start to the year, and if that is anything to go by, then the rest of this year is going to be one of our best yet.

To Mask or Not to Mask...By Ashley Moore

There are over 487,000 cases in Arkansas alone. Over 5,000 of those are in Lawrence County, and the number is increasing every day. Many students at Walnut Ridge have experienced Covid on a personal level. Because so many students were being quarantined daily, the School Board decided to return the mask mandate on Sept. 15.

Jacob Kersey, principal of WRHS, said, "We started the year hoping to be as 'normal' as possible but unfortunately due to rising cases and quarantine numbers, primarily in the elementary and middle schools, the board made the decision to mandate masks for the good of our students. This policy will be reviewed every thirty days at the board meeting and with cases seemingly on the decline in Arkansas, hopefully this will be a short-lived issue."

There are many controversies about the mask mandate. Some wonder, what is the point of the mask? No one really knows. Some people feel very passionate about all the mandates going on. Some are even losing their jobs over them.

Over 600 United Airline employees got fired because they did not have the vaccine, which goes back to "what is the point?" Why do people have to lose our jobs over a brandnew vaccine that some are skeptical about?

AJ's Last First Day

 By Alex JonesWell, it is finally my senior year, and I cannot believe I finally made it.

My last first day of school was for the books. I had to wake up at $5: 10$ so I could get dressed and go out to eat with a few people in the senior class. Somehow, I was still late....

We sat there and just caught up since most of us had not seen each other all summer.

After breakfast, I went home to see my momma. You already know she had to take two million pictures. I got to school, listened to everyone's speech and went on with my day. By lunch, I was in desperate need of a nap. I survived the day - barely; I don't know how I made it.

Senior year is going to be a breeze; it is already going by very fast. It feels weird to only have one year left of school; It feels like I was in kindergarten taking a nap last week. It is scary to grow up, but I got this.

The Beginning of the End  By Chloe Davis

Waking up at 5 a.m. was my least favorite part of the day because I need as much sleep as I can get. Some of the seniors ate breakfast at Moni's at 6 a.m., so I got a Red Bull drink at The Ridge before heading to school.

It was a long day and hard trying to get back into a routine, but we did it. I took the fattest nap when I got home and then went and ate with my friends.

Senior year should be the best yet!

Mental Health; The Struggle is Real

By Madison Wade

People everywhere have different levels of sanity. For every person out there, mental health could potentially be an issue. Someone you know could be either thriving in their head or slowly rotting away due to the health of their mind.

You might feel like one day is your worst day, even if nothing bad has happened to you. Maybe you're angry for no reason; maybe the little things make your blood boil. This could be a sign that your behavior is mirroring your mental health.

On a day-to-day basis, many people succumb to the way their minds think. One may have intrusive thoughts, or one may have past trauma that floats around and follows them wherever they go, but some people cannot fix what's wandering around in there.

There's a plethora of things you could do to help improve your mental health. One of the most basic actions is simply taking care of yourself. Self-care could be taking a shower, eating a small snack, or getting dressed for the day. Others may look to therapy or other professional help.

Most therapists are amazing at their jobs, especially when you form a bond with them. Everyone needs to take care of yourself; life is worth fighting for.

It's Complicated By Hannah Granger

Everyone wants to find that one person who makes them feel special, the person they can spend their life and grow with...right? Personally, it's never been that easy.

When it comes to choosing someone to be my person, it always comes down to two questions; "Will they hurt me?" and "Will I stay interested?"

If I'm being honest, I don't have the best judgement when it comes to choosing the people I want in my life. It's hard to determine if they'll stay loyal, especially if they have a history of bad past relationships.

How do you know whether those relationships went bad because of this person who claims to be loyal? When I allow someone in, I trust them with everything. Breaking that trust is the worst thing a person can do, therefore deciding if you can give this to them is a difficult contemplation.

As for staying interested, I have a bad habit of thinking I'm falling for someone and eventually deciding that the love I built for them was not in a romantic aspect; it was simply platonic.

In fact, my best friend and I established a rule during our sophomore year that if I couldn't stay interested in someone in a romantic aspect for more than three weeks, I must friendzone them. By making this executive decision so early on, it keeps me from hurting someone else in the long run.

However, directing the relationship after the three-week rule is the hardest part, especially in high school. Many teenagers are simply not ready to be in a relationship, so they avoid placing a title on it.

The problem with this is that it leaves you vulnerable. Be-

Let's Lower Teen Pregnancy Rates

By Kimberly Willis
Many teenage girls are full of baby fever and the thought of starting a family when they are in high school. I know my friends have thought about it quite a few times. Always hearing, "Take one for the team and have a baby."

As often these girls are talking about teen pregnancy the more it happens and most of the time, it happens to the girls who do not even want it to happen. So, how do we get this to stop before everyone you know in high school is pregnant and on government help?

One way to prevent teen pregnancy is to go into more depth about all the negative that goes into it. It's not just the fact that they will have to handle school and judgement from other teenagers. They have heard that all before.

The cost of having a baby is outrageous; and I'm not even talking about the doctors' visits and hospital stay. The crib, car seat, and stroller together are over $$ 300$ alone. Plus, the diapers, clothes, and bottles that you would have to buy.

The fact is most teens have an unsteady income, at best. Most teens have will find it difficult to buy the majority of what is needed for a baby. Some teenagers do not even have support from their parents or another family member because the family is so strict about those things.

Teen pregnancy changes the way people look at you and they always see you as a welfare-living, going-nowhere teenager.
Another way to stop teen pregnancy is to have better access to birth control options. Some kids cannot go to the health clinic and ask for birth control.

They either do not have a way or are too embarrassed to ask for it or do not want to ask their parents to take them.
If we made it easier to access, there would be fewer chances of teen pregnancy.

Teen pregnancy rates go up every year and cause girls to end up as single moms with no income. It's hard to finish school and get a decent job that will provide a stable income, especially when they have no help or come from an unstable home themselves.

Therefore, we need to do what we can to help teens who have had this life-changing experience or help them prevent it.

Big Daddy Abby
By Julie Vance

Abbigale "Abby" Grace Rounsavall was born November 6, 2003, to Neil and Lisa Waddell. Abby is 17-years-old and has two siblings, Seth, 16, and Sophia, 12. She has a turtle named Coco Jumbo and a dog named Jersey. Her best friends include Hunter Henry, Jacob McQuay, Julie Vance, Skyla Henry and Quinn Carson.

Abby has attended Walnut Ridge since kindergarten. Her advice to underclassmen, in a word, is "leave." The one thing Abby can't live without is juice, which is also her best excuse for being late to class. Her biggest pet peeve is people who buzz their lips together and the thing she will miss the most about high school is seeing all her friends.

Abby is a member of Student Council, FBLA, Science

One of Heidi's favorite quotes is "...alcohol is the de-struction."- Bob Marley. The best advice Heidi has received was from her dad who told her, "Don't worry about what people think about you."

If Heidi could start high school again, she would actually try. The thing Heidi is looking forward to the most after graduation is "not having to wake up at ungodly hours."

She has two unpopular opinions: Females should be able to take a girl to prom at Walnut Ridge and pineapple is a pizza topping.

Hey! It's Hannah Hatfield By Maggie Porter

Hannah Ann Lynn Hatfield, daughter of Bobby Hatfield, is 17 years old; her birthday is March 19, 2004. She has a younger brother, Mark, who is a sophomore at WRHS.

She has attended Walnut Ridge school for four years. Her best friend is Chloe Davis; her favorite teacher is Mrs. Mary.

Her advice for underclassmen is "enjoy every day because it really does go by fast". One thing Hannah cannot live without is her phone.

Her biggest pet peeve is being late. One thing she will miss most after high school is the easy work.

Hannah is in FBLA, Key Club and Student Council. She plays volleyball and basketball.

The best advice she has ever received was from Coach Middlebrooks who said,

Holly has one brother, Drake Berry, who is 22 and a half-sister, Samantha Weir, who is 29 .

Holly's best friends include Jack McFerrin, Avery Anderson, Emma Aaron and Maddie Burris.

Holly has attended Walnut Ridge since she was in kindergarten. Holly cannot pick a favorite teacher because she likes them all.

Her most embarrassing moment in school was when she shot a three-pointer in junior high basketball, and it went five feet over the goal.

Holly's best excuse for being late to class is "I was talking to Mrs. Mary..." Her biggest pet peeve is loud chewing and people not making eye contact when talking.

The biggest thing she will miss about high school is "bullying Avery and Emma."

What's Happening

Head of the Band

By Dagan Lillard

Madison Grace Jones is 16 years old and has been in Pride Band since sixth grade. She plays alto saxophone in concert and marching season and baritone saxophone in the Jazz Band.

However, she does not get to exercise her incredible sax skills often in marching season, as she is the Pride Band's newest drum major - what an honor to have!

Many people praise her for her laid back and friendly attitude in band, which translates into respect from the band when we go to perform.

Speaking of, Madison says her favorite band activity is going to the football games because of the silly chants the band does.

Surprisingly, Madison says that the reason she joined band was because her older sisters forced her to, but is ultimately glad that she did.

Her favorite person in band is the one and only Jacob McQuay.

Madison recalls her favorite band memory as when we stopped at the McCain Mall on our way to state, and almost being launched into the stratosphere by the trampoline.

She says that her favorite marching show she has been a part of would have to be Colors, and least favorite was Generation X.

Her best advice for underclassmen is, "Don't be annoying and follow directions." Pretty good advice, if you ask me.

One thing that keeps band interesting every day for Madison is "The weird eighth graders." Her favorite season of band is marching season because she is the drum major.

Madison says that she would love to play in a D1 band or a college marching band but doubts it will happen.

The best advice she has received in band is "What happens on the band bus stays on the band bus."

Madison says, even if she could start over in band, she would not change a thing. Some quotes she has heard randomly in the band room include: "You're not black, you're caramel!" - Seth R.

Covid Aftermath Continues By Carissa Caldwell

A lot of students and faculty have been quarantined for being exposed to corona, but not many have actually tested positive. In case you have not, I can tell you right now, it sucks, to be blunt.

Every case is different. For me, I had severe chest congestion, a cough, sneezing, nausea, body chills and fatigue. I stayed in bed most of my quarantine because I was too sick to do anything.

Now that I am recovering, I have found it very hard to catch my breath and stay awake. I also have something referred to as "covid brain."

It has been extremely difficult to retain information and do any kind of critical thinking. Schoolwork has been harder for me than it typically is.

Ultimately, I am grateful that I did not have to be hospitalized. If you test positive for covid be sure to take care of yourself, and I hope you recover quickly.

Ms. Copeland Takes on EAST  By Ray Yang

The first-year EAST teacher is Anna Marie Copeland aka Ms. Copeland. In addition to teaching EAST at WRHS, she also teaches anatomy.

Ms. Copeland went to Mayflower High School. She has a bachelor's degree in biology along with a minor in STEM education from the University of Central Arkansas in Conway. Her previous job was a pharmacy technician.

Ms. Copeland's favorite part about teaching is seeing the creativity of students. Her words of advice would be "It's okay to not know, but it's not okay to not try." Something Ms. Copeland looks forward to is seeing Ray Yang, Jared Black, and Ryann Douglas every day.

Some of her hobbies and interests include crafting, outdoors and traveling. This summer, she and her family enjoyed a trip to the beach.

Alleycats Sparkle on Beale

By Olivia Farmer

Our very own Alleycat dance team attended a Memphis Redbirds baseball game on Friday, September 17 including a performance after the game ended. We danced to a remix of I Love Rock'n Roll by Joan Jett.

A big crowd of people attended from teachers to students, to members of the Walnut Ridge community came out to support us. We had a great turn out and we had a bunch of fun.

Alleycats Maggie Porter, Jernie Tyra, and Avery Anderson along with drum major Madison Jones, were chosen to participate in a game of musical chairs down on the field during the game Maggie was the last one standing in the game.

We even had a group of mini-Alleycats from elementary dress like us and come to the game to support. Overall, it was a really fun experience and I hope the Alleycats continue the tradition in future years.

cause there isn't a label, you're more likely to question the stability of the relationship. Another problem is people who would rather have the aspects of a relationship without the loyalty, sometimes referred to as a 'situationship.'

Any experience I've had with these may go well for a while, but they always end the same. Eventually it either fizzles out or ends with a bang.

Maybe I'll have a little more luck with the next one; maybe I've already met them and we've yet to reach our full potential.

Kiss the PigBy Dagan Lillard

The high school choir is hosting a fundraiser the week of homecoming (Oct. 4th - Oct 8th) called "Kiss the Pig." Anyone can vote, but students especially are encouraged to vote for any of the teachers or coaches that signed up. There are flyers in the hallways and on the TV displays dispersed throughout the high school that list the teachers who are participating.

Each vote costs fifty cents and must be placed inside an envelope with the name of the teacher or coach that the votes are for on the outside. The envelope must be sealed, and the handwriting must be legible, or the money will be taken as a donation to the choir.

There are two ways to vote: the first way is to go to Mr. Weber's room and talk with him and place your envelope in the pink box. The other way is to take your envelope to the office and put it in the pink "Kiss the Pig" box - you cannot miss it.

Yes, the pig is real; and yes, the poor soul that has the most votes by twelve o'clock October 8 will have to kiss said pig - no holding back. The teachers and coaches cannot back down, so cast your votes! To the teachers and coaches, may luck be on your side.

Before and After: Maggie Porter and Jernie Tyra race to win while competing in musical chairs!

Farm Bureau Players of the Week

Lawrence County Farm Bureau is pleased to present the Farm Bureau Player of the Week to student athletes in the county. Currently, we recognize football and volleyball athletes weekly during the season and sponsor MVP awards for the Lawrence County Basketball Tournament.

Farm Bureau is strictly the sponsor of the award and is not involved in the selection of the student athlete.

We partner with coaches, administrators, and EAST programs. East has been a great partner and is responsible for creating the graphics and photos for publicity each week.

When selected the athlete receives a ball with a WRHS Bobcat logo, as well as the Lawrence County Farm Bureau logo. I come to the school each week on Monday mornings to make the presentation.

It is always a bright spot in my week to get an opportunity to visit our county schools. We are proud to recognize student athletes and support our students and schools.

Player of the Week is a statewide program offered by Arkansas Farm Bureau.
